How does a remortgage work?

A remortgage could help you save money if you weigh up the fees involved with the savings you could make. Here's how it works.

A remortgage is the process of moving your home's existing mortgage to one with a new lender.

People remortgage for many different reasons, including:

- Finding a better deal elsewhere – you might be on a standard variable rate (SVR) and want to move to a fixed-term rate.
- Coming to the end of a fixed-term deal on your current mortgage and wanting to lock in a lower rate with a new lender.
- The loan-to-value on the home is lower (as more of the mortgage has been repaid).
- Wanting to get ahead of a rise in interest rates, which would affect mortgage rates.

How a remortgage could help you save

One of the big reasons people remortgage is to save money on their monthly payments. If you're on a standard variable rate that is higher than the fixed-rate deals currently available, you could save by switching – either to a fixed-rate mortgage or one that 'tracks' the Bank of England's base rate.

If your home has gone up in value and you've paid off enough of your mortgage to give you a lower loan-to-value, it means you own more of your home and have less to pay off. Remortgaging could result in lower monthly mortgage payments because you're paying off less of a loan amount (and in turn, less interest on it too).

How long does the remortgage application take?

The process can take between four to eight weeks from the time you apply so it's good to start planning early. If you're coming to the end of a fixed-rate or tracker term, your lender should tell you that your mortgage will move onto their standard variable rate¹. This could be an ideal time to move if you find a better deal elsewhere, or you may even find an attractive deal with the same lender and go through a 'product transfer' (see box).

How much does a remortgage cost?

Existing lender fees

Your existing lender could charge you a fee if you're leaving them early into a fixed period in your mortgage. This is known as an 'early repayment charge' and could be in the range of 1% to 5% of your outstanding mortgage balance. They will also charge you an 'exit' fee of around £50 to £100 to cover their administration costs.

New lender fees

Your new lender could charge you a range of fees, so before you commit it's important to check what you will pay. This will help you calculate whether a move is financially beneficial overall.

Their fees could include:

- Application fee to set up your new mortgage. Could also be called an 'arrangement', 'product' or 'booking' fee. This could be around £1,000.
- Valuation and conveyancing fees. Some providers won't charge for these, but it's worth checking if you are moving to a new lender.
- Solicitor's fee covering the legal paperwork to do with managing the transfer of your mortgage.

Is a remortgage right for you?

Whether or not you remortgage all depends on your situation and the type of mortgage plan you're currently on. You may want a mortgage that lets you make overpayments, or you could be coming to the end of your current deal's fixed term and think the lender's SVR will be too high. One of the most important things you can do before you decide is gather your current mortgage paperwork, look at the fees and get some expert advice on your next steps.

What about product transfers?

If your mortgage is coming to its maturity date but you'd prefer to stay with your current lender, you could consider a product transfer. Switching to a new mortgage product with the same lender could save you money and time. Protect your possessions with accidental damage cover

Insurance claims for accidental damage increased over the past year as more people worked from home, so it's a good time to check your own coverage.

Figures from some of the country's biggest insurance providers have shown a sharp rise in claims of accidental damage during the lockdown.

With many millions now working from home, the chances of accidents and damage to property have inevitably gone up. Halifax Home Insurance reported a rise of 35% for claims between July and September 2020 compared with the same period in 2019.

Types of accidents included damage to computers and other electrical items, broken windows and water leaks. With holidays cancelled, children home schooling and everyone staying in, appliances were used a lot more than normal, along with central heating systems.

Millions paid out in home insurance claims

One Insurance provider paid out £33 million in home insurance claims in 2020, with 15% going towards accidental damage claims. General claims not related to accidents accounted for 25% and were mostly related to appliance and pipework damage.

The biggest rise in claims related to damage to computers and electrical equipment because of spillages. As working from home turned many of us into amateur office managers, the usual health and safety measures within a normal office environment were not easy to replicate – especially with children and pets in the picture.

Admiral reported its accidental damage claims increased by 28% since the lockdown started in March 2020, compared to the previous year. Damaged laptop claims increased by 31% and claims around damage caused by home renovation also rose.

Check your accidental damage coverage

It's a good time to see what your home insurance policy includes when it comes to covering accidental damage to your property.

1. Check that you have the accidental damage cover in place, because it's often offered as an optional extra to your home insurance.
2. Check the limits and exclusions on your accidental damage cover, making sure there is enough to cover any new gadgets or equipment you bought during lockdown.
3. If you have made renovations and upgrades to your home during lockdown, try to calculate the extra value they bring to your home to ensure your home policy covers it.

How to avoid accidental damage in your home

Sometimes, accidents just happen. But there are ways to reduce the likelihood of an accident, like keeping drinks in a closed cup, away from computers, or tidying cables to avoid tripping.

With many homeowners installing wooden flooring, it's worth keeping rugs secure with non-slip backing, and encouraging children to be aware of risks in the home when they are playing.

And it's always a good idea to have your insurers' telephone number and the policy details handy for when you need them.

Along with helping you check the small print in your accidental damage policy, your financial adviser is here to help you find insurance plans that work best for you and your family, to make sure you're best protected.

Get the best out of your BTL mortgage

Many fixed mortgage deals will be approaching the end of their term this October, so it's a good idea to review your buy-to-let mortgage.

With interest rates still at low levels and demand for rental properties increasing around the country, investing in a buy-to-let (BTL) is a popular choice for many.

Buy to let basics

A BTL mortgage is a specific type of product for those who want to buy a property with the intention of renting it. Because of this, there are different terms and rules around a BTL mortgage (compared to a regular mortgage for a property the buyer intends to live in.)

- With a BTL mortgage, the anticipated rental income is taken into account when the lender calculates how much you can borrow.
- A BTL mortgage could suit investors with enough equity to put down a deposit of at least 20% of the value of the property (but some lenders could require up to 40%.)
- Your credit record is closely scrutinised with a BTL mortgage, as with a regular mortgage application.

Interest rates for BTL mortgages are usually higher than a regular mortgage.

Things to remember

If you have a BTL mortgage already and its fixed interest rate term is coming to an end, you may be thinking about switching products or providers to gain a better deal. Here are some other things to look out for:

- Examine all of your options into the type of product to suit your investment going forward. A financial adviser is best placed to help you with this.
- Don't forget to research any fees and charges around changing your product too, as these could be higher than you expect.
- When changing products, you may be asked about your property's rental income history in order to assure any new lenders that you are able to keep up with mortgage payments.
- Show that you have sufficient savings to cover any gaps in rental periods when your property could be unoccupied.
- For your own peace of mind, having a cushion of savings available to cover any essential repairs is important.

If you are looking to remortgage your BTL property or are thinking about transferring your mortgage to a different provider, our advisers can help you find a product that best suits you.

Some buy to let mortgages are/is not regulated by the Financial Conduct Authority.

What are value-added services?

Value-added services are benefits included in an insurance policy that you might not be aware of – but could help improve your overall health and wellbeing.

When you take out an insurance plan like life insurance, critical illness or income protection, you get the financial protection in the form of a payout, but there are also other services available to you as complementary parts of those plans.

These 'value-added services' or 'wellbeing services' are designed to provide customers with a range of emotional and practical support services throughout the life of the plan, not just when you may need to claim. Most services are included within the price of the plan and can often be accessed by family members too.

It's a good idea to check your policy first (and contact your provider to see if any of their services carry a charge) but you may find some of the following complementary value-added services are part of your policy:

These are just some of the extra-value services that your insurance plan could offer, covering a wide range of needs.

If you're unsure about how to find out more information from your policy, our advisers are here to look at the small print and help you make the most of any value-added benefits available to you.

Annual health check

A range of tests to check various health markers such as cholesterol and blood sugar levels. This may be followed by a consultation with a nurse or GP to discuss the results, depending on how your policy works.

Bereavement counselling

Giving you access to emotional and practical support at a difficult time, if you have been affected by bereavement.

Mental health support.

Being mindful of mental health is more important than ever. These value-added services help those facing mental health challenges, with counselling through various health providers.

GP services

Ability to see or speak to a medical professional from your home or faceto-face, without facing long waiting times, and at a time that suits you.

Second medical opinions

Second medical opinion services give you the chance to check with a second medical professional about the course of treatment or a diagnosis you've received.

Nutritional support

Gives you access to a nutritionist to help improve your diet, which could boost your overall health.

Fitness services

These services give you access to fitness services to enhance your overall health and wellbeing.

How to protect your business

What is business protection insurance and how does it work? Find out why it could be right for your business.

If you own or run a small business, protecting it is always a priority, especially if something were to happen to a key member, which could affect the financial health of the company. In this situation, business protection insurance could provide some peace of mind.

What is business protection?

Business protection provides coverage in the event that a director, business partner or other key employee of your business suffers a critical illness or long-term disability, or passes away. It's a way of protecting the business and ensuring continuity. Business protection can help support forward planning in terms of succession and gives you ways to provide stability during what could be an uncertain time, especially if the company is small.

What are the types of business protection?

Business protection insurance usually offers cover in three ways:

Key person protection

This protection provides cover to replace key staff and cover income lost by their absence that could affect the business. It can cover any key employee from a head of department to the CEO.

Business loan protection

This protects the business by helping to repay business debts like a loan or bank overdraft if the owner or a key member (like a partner) dies or suffers a critical illness.

Shareholder protection

This cover is also known as 'ownership' or 'partnership' protection. It specifically covers the business owners if a shareholder dies, or suffers a critical illness, by ensuring that funds will be available to buy shares from the deceased shareholder's estate.

These three forms of business protection also come with the option to add critical illness cover if you think it necessary. You could also get coverage for more than one person within the business. It's always important to speak to an adviser who can help you figure out the the right type of business protection for your business and any extra coverage (like critical illness) your business and employees could benefit from.

What are cross-option agreements?*

Cross-option agreements are usually required with shareholder protection insurance. The agreement is set up with the directors or partners of the business, and means that if one of these members dies, the remaining directors or partners have the option to buy back the shares from the deceased shareholder's estate. It also gives representatives of the deceased's estate the option to sell the shares to the remaining shareholders (which could be the preferred option for both sides).

Before setting an agreement up legal advice should be sought.*

What are the benefits of business protection?

One of the benefits of business protection is the knowledge that should anything happen to a crucial member of the business – or someone with a financial commitment within the company – there would be some protection financially. It also gives other members of the business some peace of mind knowing this. Business protection can protect any loans or mortgages tied to your business, too, meaning lenders (knowing that you have business loan protection in place) are less likely to refuse a future loan, and will not approach the guarantor of a loan or their estate to recoup any existing loans.

In a small business that relies on a few key employees, the risk to the business from a financial point of view might increase if one of the team were unable to contribute because they die or are critically ill. In that situation, business protection is a wise plan to have in place.

An adviser can help you find out which type of business protection plan works for you and your company.
